ARMED INMATE ESCAPES

BY JACQUELYN HACK
EDITOR, THE OLDHAM ERA

An inmate receiving medical treatment at a La Grange hospital escaped a guard's custody and spent 10 hours on the lam before an eagle-eyed business owner's report of suspicious activity at his warehouse led to the inmate's arrest.

According to police, Christopher Eric Claxton, 32, fled at about 9:50 p.m. April 4 from Baptist Hospital Northeast after a struggle with a female corrections officer.

Officials say Claxton overpowered the officer and swiped a .38-caliber revolver from her possession.

Claxton, wearing only white boxer shorts and socks, fled to a wooded area behind the hospital. Baptist Northeast remained on lockdown through the night.

Police apprehended Claxton at about 8 a.m. the next day after Wayne Theiss, owner of Theiss Home Furnishings, noticed vandalism to a green Ford Ranger parked outside his warehouse on Button Lane.

Theiss said the passenger's

Theiss notified police, who located the blanket and apprehended Claxton nearby.

Claxton is now in custody of the Department of Corrections.

He has been incarcerated at KSR since 2007, serving a 20-year sentence from Adair, McCreary, Pulaski and Russell counties on two counts of kidnapping, three counts of robbery, four counts of burglary,

More than 200 new jobs could be added through a possible expansion to a Buckner facility.

The Carriage House Co. is a subsidiary of Ralcorp that currently employs about 280 workers at the Oldham County location.

The company is the nation's largest supplier of store-brand preserves, jellies, peanut butter, syrups and dressings.

The new jobs would be in peanut butter production, currently produced by the company at other facilities but not in Buckner.

Competitor Algood Food Company has a peanut butter plant in Louisville's Jefferson Riverport International business park.

The staff at Baptist Hospital Northeast kicked off Derby season with a fashion show and hat extravaganza March 29 to raise funds for the American Heart Association's Heart Walk.

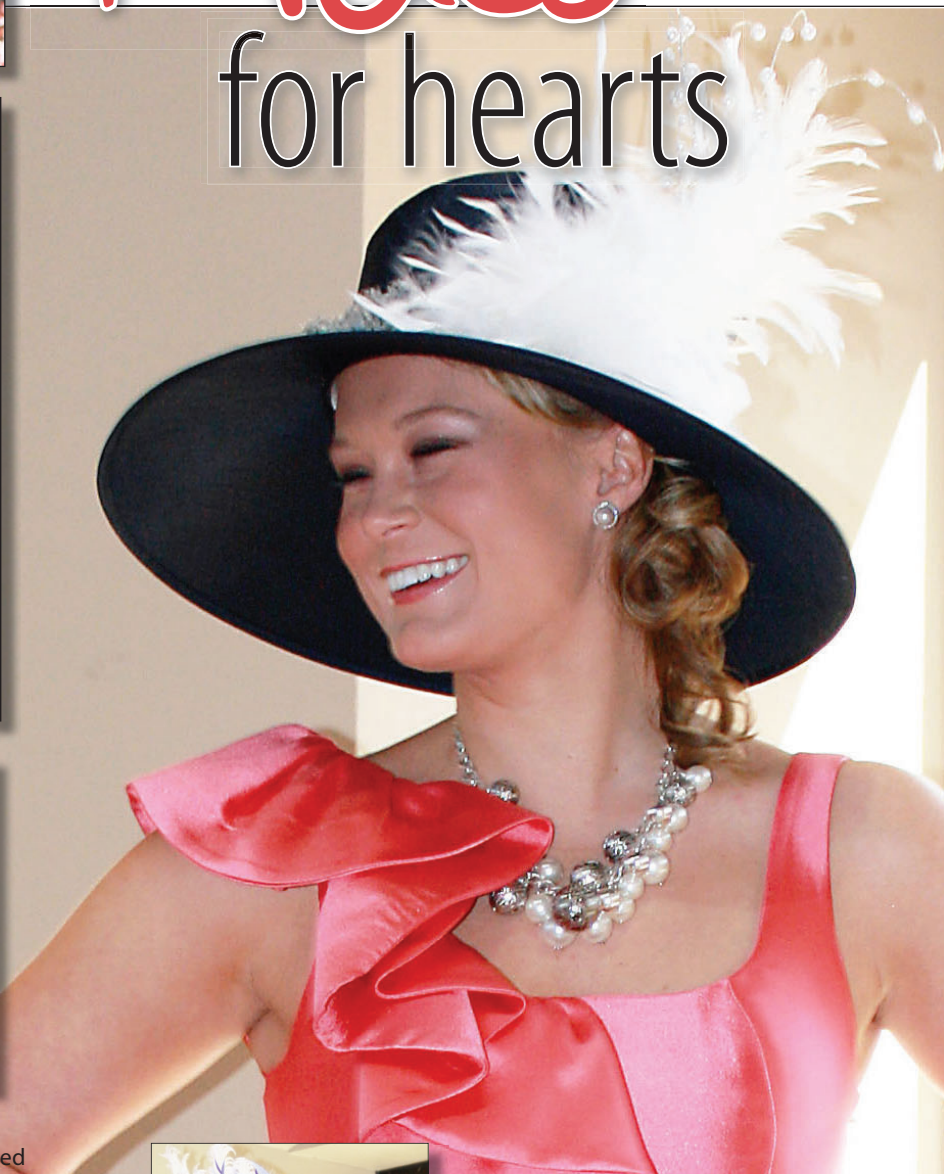

A Derby fashion show featured staff members modeling clothes and jewelry from local merchants. Models also sported hats made by hospital staff members.

Raffle tickets were sold for chances to win hats through the following week, with winners drawn April 6.

Bettina White, spokesperson for Baptist Northeast, said the raffle raised $177 for the hospital's Heart Walk team.

FIRST AND WORST

Oldham ranks high for healthy residents, but not healthy foods

BY TRACY HARRIS
STAFF WRITER, THE OLDHAM ERA

An annual health report shows Oldham County ranked first — and last — among Kentucky counties. The County Health Rankings report is produced by the University of Wisconsin's Population Health Institute and compares nearly every county in all 50 states. Overall, Oldham County remains the healthiest in the Commonwealth, based on mortality and morbidity rates, health behaviors, clinical care and social/economic factors. But new factors added to the physical environment report section put Oldham County last out of all 120 Kentucky counties. That's partly due to air pollution — something the county can't fix, said Teresa Gamsky, director of public health at the Oldham County Health Department. But Gamsky points to two factors as known issues — limited access to healthy foods and the number of fast food restaurants. "Our responsibility is to provide support and access to healthy foods," she said. The report reviews grocery stores to evaluate access to healthy foods. Fruits, vegetables and other healthy options are usually available in supermarkets, but not in convenience stores or smaller grocery stores. The report found 9 percent of Oldham County residents have limited access to healthy food, more than the state average of 7 percent. Gamsky said her home in Centerfield is a perfect example. Although there's a convenience store nearby that sells milk, bread and other basics, to shop at a large grocery store she must drive 15 miles to La Grange or 15 miles to Louisville. And for the county's low-income population, traveling that far for groceries may not be an option. With no public transportation outside La Grange and Buckner, there is a small pocket of people who may not have cars to drive to grocery stores. For Crestwood families, it's even tougher — the TARC bus goes from Crestwood directly to downtown Louisville, so there's no public transit. There's also no grocery store accepting Women, Infants and Children supplemental nutrition program vouchers. WIC, administered by the health department, helps about 760 low-income, nutritionally at-risk mothers and children

Student shows food smarts in essay contest

STAFF WRITER, THE OLDHAM ERA

More than 400 elementary students submitted essays for a contest honoring school nutrition month. The "Get Your Plate In Shape" essay challenged students to write how they stay healthy and active with family in friends — in 100 words or less. Avery Dobson, a Locust Grove fourth grader, won the contest. Leigh Anne Peterson, assistant director for school nutrition, planned a surprise presentation for Dobson in front of the entire school. A shocked and excited Dobson received a bicycle for winning the contest. Peterson said her department narrowed the entries down to the best from each school, then to a top five overall. Dobson wrote that she hopes her healthy eating habits influence those around her and that she enjoys jogging with her parents and playing sports with her friends.

Essay — How I keep my "Plate in Shape"
Staying healthy and active is a great way to get your "Plate in Shape." We need to live a healthy lifestyle. There are many ways to stay healthy and active with friends and family. One way is to eat plenty of fruits and vegetables. When I eat healthy with friends and family they see what I choose and this might influence them. Another way is to drink healthy fluids. I drink healthy fluids to encourage my friends and family to stay hydrated. The last way is to exercise. I enjoy jogging with my parents and playing sports with my friends.

unlawful imprisonment, impersonating a peace officer, seven counts of theft by unlawful taking, and two counts of possession of firearm by a convicted felon. He will face additional charges related to his escape. Crews from KSR searched the area near the hospital in two-man teams and officers from the Kentucky Correctional Institute for Women in Pewee Valley assisted by establishing a tight perimeter. La Grange residents were advised to keep their doors locked and asked to call 911 to report suspicious activity. Oldham County Emergency Management issued a OneCall notification before 11 p.m. with a description of Claxton and the area officials believed he could be hiding. The Department of Corrections issued a phone call notification to registered users around midnight, only stating "an offender has escaped." The Louisville Metro Police Air Patrol searched the area by helicopter, but rainy weather temporarily grounded the crew, giving some residents the false impression the search had ended around midnight. Prison officials and officers from the Oldham County Police Department, La Grange Police Department, Kentucky State Police Post 5 and the Oldham County Sheriff's Office searched for Claxton throughout the night as Oldham County Dispatchers fielded calls from residents with information about his possible whereabouts. Oldham County Schools activated its emergency notification system about 6 a.m. to notify parents of a fugitive at large and to take extra precaution while students waited at bus stops. Schools in the Oldham County district operated in lockdown mode Thursday morning at the start of the school day. Officials prohibited visitors, teachers kept blinds pulled and all doors remained locked within school buildings until prison officials announced the all clear at about 8:30 a.m. Oldham County Schools issued a second OneCall emergency notification to inform parents the fugitive had been apprehended and the school day would continue as planned.

Theiss said he walked the perimeter of his warehouse before police arrived and didn't notice anything out of the ordinary. The truck is the only property damage reported. "A small broken window is a small price to pay to catch the guy before he ended up in someone's house," Theiss said. But the truck doesn't belong to Theiss. He borrowed the pickup from a longtime Theiss Home Furnishings employee, Clara Wyatt, in order to pick up mulch for landscaping at the store and warehouse. Theiss left it overnight at the warehouse and a crew planned to finish landscaping Thursday afternoon. Just a few minutes after police arrived, Theiss watched as officers walked Claxton, barefoot and handcuffed, to their cruisers. "Just underwear, no socks," Theiss said. "He must've lost those along the way." Email us about this story at: editor@oldhamera.com.

Students lead project to provide books to low-income families

BY TRACY HARRIS
STAFF WRITER, THE OLDHAM ERA

A group of Oldham County students gave younger students a special treat just in time for Easter weekend.

Members of the Oldham County Leadership Academy delivered books to more than 350 younger students as part of their capstone service project, "Reading is Magic."

The OCLA is made up of 24 juniors, eight each from Oldham County, South Oldham and North Oldham high schools, and meets seven times throughout the school year to develop leadership skills.

The students had to brainstorm, choose and organize a service project — using skills learned in the academy program — to benefit the school district.

They created "Bippity Boppity Books," a book drive for students who lack reading materials at home.

Students broke into groups to handle different aspects of the project, including asking businesses for monetary donations to purchase additional books.

Jackie Howell, the district's secondary schools gifted and talented teacher and OCLA coordinator, said the students had to solve problems that arose and make adjustments.

As students carried in boxes of books to their April 5 meeting, it became clear the program was a huge success.

More than 3,500 books needed to be sorted and grouped by reading level and reader's gender that afternoon.

Students then assembled a bag for each of the 350 anonymous students submitted to Howell by elementary school officials.

Officials from each elementary school submitted a list to Howell of the age and gender of students they thought would benefit from the books. Students later dropped the books off for distribution by school personnel.

It is the second year for the OCLA program. Howell said juniors are selected for the program so they can give back to their school communities and make a greater impact than seniors might.

Throughout the school year, students have learned ways to identify their own strengths and weaknesses as leaders — and how to apply that information to working with others.

Oldham County High School student Emily Daley said she even learned how to use people's appearance to infer their personality and better communicate with them.

She believes the skill will help in the future with scholarship, college and job applications.

Even applying for the program was a challenge, said Hannah Grau, an Oldham County High School junior.

Students also said they found the group's diversity to be educational — by mixing all three high schools, they all met new people with different backgrounds and personalities.

Howell said the opportunity to develop leadership skills is vital to graduating well-rounded and well-prepared students.

Each high school designs its own application process for OCLA, Howell said, and student selection for next year's program is nearly complete. An eighth-grade junior leadership academy will also start in the fall.

purchase groceries in Oldham County.

The vouchers can be redeemed at certain grocery stores — not including the Crestwood Supermarket at Ky. 22 and Ky. 329, formerly the Crestwood IGA.

That leaves WIC clients with few options, Gamsky said, and is an issue she hopes can be resolved.

Gamsky said she has spoken to the county judge-executive and chamber of commerce officials about the importance of attracting a larger grocery store to the South Oldham area.

Cynthia Stafford, executive director of the HDB Service Group that operates Oldham's Public Bus, said she would like to expand service to Crestwood in the future. A previous route connected Crestwood to La Grange but was cancelled due to poor ridership.

Currently about 40-50 people ride "Opie" daily on its two fixed loops in La Grange and Buckner.

The preponderance of fast food restaurants in Oldham County is also alarming — nearly 60 percent of the county's eateries fall into that category.

Dori Livy, the health department's nurse program manager, said fast food restaurants have been related to increased level of diabetes — a disease affecting 10 percent of Oldham residents, according to the report.

The report also found the county lacking in recreational facilities. However, the data set doesn't include parks or YMCAs.

Oldham County's two indoor recreational facilities, the John Black Aquatics Center and the Oldham County YMCA, are also both located in Buckner. Residents in the south and north areas of the county do not have nearby facilities.

There are about a dozen parks in Oldham County, but Gamsky points out residents must drive to get to most of them.

The county and city of La Grange both have ordinances mandating sidewalks in future developments.

State grant money also provides funding for sidewalk construction across the county and funds have been allocated for a pedestrian/bike overpass crossing I-71 at exit 17. The overpass is part of the Oldham County Greenways project to build an interurban greenway connecting La Grange and Pewee Valley.

The addition of an overpass from Commerce Parkway to New Moody Lane will also give bike and pedestrian access to both sides of La Grange.

The Coalition for a Healthy Oldham County, which includes the health department, is currently collecting data from four different assessments to evaluate the county's health status.

Gamsky said data from the County Health Rankings will also be considered as the coalition develops strategies to combat health issues in the county.

Her concern is that Oldham County isn't rallying in the county health rankings — compared to other counties across the country, Oldham still falls short in many areas, including smoking, obesity, physical activity and the physical environment factors.

"We need to be intentional on focusing our energies in these areas," she said.

BLUE HYDRANGEA TEA BENEFITS CANCER EDUCATION

More than tea and crumpets will be served at the fifth-annual Blue Hydrangea Tea next weekend.

A health and wellness room will offer free mini-massages and reiki treatments, along with health information and checks from event-sponsor Baptist Hospital Northeast.

The wellness message is in keeping with the event's purpose of benefiting Ovarian Awareness of Kentucky, a Louisville-based group educates women and healthcare professionals about the subtle signs of ovarian cancer. OAK also has a monthly support group.

Tea – both hot and cold – will be poured at 25 downtown businesses participating in the event launched by the late Cindy Adams.

Adams, a former downtown merchant, lost her battle with ovarian cancer. In her honor, fellow business owners carry on the tradition.

Participants pick up a free teacup and information at the Irish Rover Too then stroll from shop to shop, tasting treats and sipping tea while browsing. Only a handful of La Grange businesses usually open on Sunday, so this is an extra effort for the merchants – but a labor of love.

A new addition to this year's event is a survivors' blessing at noon at The Irish Rover Too.

A special edition Blue Hydrangea candle is also on sale at Soy Creations with proceeds going to OAK.

Tickets are on sale for $10 at CUB Bank La Grange, Serendipity Café, Main Street Boutique, Dizzy Dave's East and Karen's Book Barn and Java Stop. Tickets are available online at www.oakky.org. Day-of tickets will be $15.

The event is from 1-5 p.m. April 22.

No spring break beaches for this gal

Song of Solomon 6:1 . . .
“Where has your lover gone, most beautiful of women? Which way did your lover turn?”

My lover has gone down to Florida, to Panama City Beach, to frolic in the water, and on the sands, with six children and an enormous amount of sunscreen. He shall return to me in six days, yea, on the seventh day he shall return if he becometh weary while driving.

Our 15-year-old daughter has been begging for years to go to Florida on spring break. Last week, out of the blue, hubby agreed to take her. They also decided to take our teenaged son, goddaughter, niece and our two preschoolers.

Since hubby was willing to wrangle the kids alone, and I have absolutely no desire to be anywhere near Panama City Beach during spring break, I begged off, citing my reason as needing uninterrupted time to work on a writing project.

Early Saturday morning, I waved as they pulled out of the driveway. There is always so much initial excitement involved in a road trip that I was momentarily seized with the desire to join them.

But then I remembered the reality. Fourteen hours in a car with four teenagers, two preschoolers and a man who insists on listening only to bluegrass music. Not to mention, they are all staying in one hotel room.

Granted, it sleeps six — but there are seven of them.

And there is the sunscreen issue. My very least favorite parenting duty is slathering sunscreen onto wiggly, ticklish children under the age of 6, and then worrying about whether or not it's time to reapply.

I have never been completely and totally alone at home for the night, let alone for a whole week! I hardly knew where to start. I keep forgetting that I am free to do whatever I please, whenever I please. But then it hits me again, and I get all giddy and stressed out. So much to do, and only six days to do it!

My first choice of activity was to scan old photos and post them on Facebook. I didn't really intend to spend five hours doing it, but once I got started I couldn't stop. Not only that, I didn't have to stop!

I reminded myself that no one was waiting on me to do anything else. There wasn't even anyone expecting me to come up with dinner. So, I scanned for five hours.

Then I cleaned the kitchen. Really, really cleaned it. I organized some cabinets, gave the floor a good scrubbing and even polished the countertops.

There was a lot more pleasure in doing it because I knew the kitchen would stay clean for a whole week. Indeed, I'm on day five and it still looks just as nice as it did on day one. When my crew arrives home tomorrow, it will be demolished in 20 minutes. But it will be a happy demolition, because I do miss them a little bit.

I've always said that if I had only myself to get ready, I would never be late to church. Turns out, I was wrong. Even on my own, I was still five minutes late.

But I blame it on the fact that I am stuck driving my son's pickup truck, and the seats don't adjust. I fiddled with it for five minutes before making the decision to drive with my tip-toes.

After church, I opted not to go to lunch with friends because, after all, I really did need to get started on that writing project.

Since I am writing about my international travels with children, it made sense to watch National Lampoon's European Vacation both times it came on.

It also made sense to watch three episodes of Cupcake Wars.

But when Sunday came to a close, I felt good about my writing progress and went to bed too exhausted to hear any bumps in the night.

The rest of the week I have been dedicated to my project, only allowing time for a short wedding planning session with a friend and an early dinner at Bob Evans.

When it hit me that I was free to do as I please, I also got a pedicure. And a couple of tanning sessions. And I took a short break from my writing to go to the movies. And when I had a sudden urge to lay down in the backyard and watch clouds float through the sky, I did that too.

But I have made some serious progress on my writing, and as soon as I'm done getting my hair cut and colored today, I bet I'll wrap it up in no time!

KEEP LOVE POSITIVE

Loving relationships give us a chance to develop our capacities for understanding, commitment, honesty and patience. It is so easy to take each other for granted. There are four ways I have discovered to keep your love positive, fun and highly productive.

Understand your partner's point of view

The easiest way to spoil your relationship is to be argumentative because you need to be right. It's deadly.

Argumentative people argue to the nth degree until they win about everything and anything.

They don't consider their partner's viewpoints and rarely, if ever, compromise.

Any criticism, even if justified, is met with defensive and sometimes angry responses as the need to be right overrides the need to compromise and improve the relationship.

Effective relationship building stems from understanding the other person's point of view. Avoid futile arguments and remember that the objective is not winning, but what's best for your partnership.

Be prepared to work hard

John Lennon told us, "All you need is love," and while it's a memorable song, it just isn't true. Just look at what happened to famous lovers throughout time — Scarlett O'Hara and Rhett Butler from "Gone With the Wind," for example.

The famous duo is never quite in sync. The lovers experience passion but not permanence throughout their epic love affair, and their stormy marriage reflects the surrounding Civil War battles.

The flirtatious Scarlett can't make up her mind among her many suitors, and when she finally decides to focus on Rhett, her fickle nature has driven him away — and well, he just doesn't give a damn anymore.

Stay alert to keep your relationship smooth, and jump on the bumps as they surface — because you need more than love.

Real happiness is the function of years of doing the right things, or connecting your personal accomplishments with helping your family and your community be virtuous, too, day in and day out, until the very last day you've got.

Encourage each other to grow

Respect for each other is absolutely

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

Circuit court clerk's office needs to change

To the editor:

The circuit court clerk's office in Oldham County is open 40.5 hours per week. None of those hours are convenient if you have a job.

A resident of Oldham County should not have to take off from work to get a driver's license.

This office ought to be open every Saturday for half a day.

Clerks for years have resisted opening the office on Saturdays.

Recently the hours have been cut at the direction of John Minton, the chief justice of the Kentucky Supreme Court.

Apparently Mr. Minton can leave his job any time he wants to get his driver's license.

In the new year we will get a new clerk. It is imperative that we get one that will serve the needs of the citizens of Oldham County rather than the desires of its employees.

The upcoming Republican primary will decide who the new clerk will be. There are four candidates.

Two of the candidates used to work in the Circuit Clerks office.

LETTERS POLICY

Letters to the editor are welcome and should be 400 words or less, and must include your signature, address and phone number (for verification). Letters on local issues will take top priority; all others will be published on a first-come basis as space allows. Letters listing specific businesses for sponsorship of local events and causes are best suited as paid advertisements. Letters considered to be libelous will not be printed. The Era reserves the right to limit frequent writers to one per month. The Era also reserves the right to edit letters for length and accuracy. Deadline for letters is 5 p.m. Thursday. Send to: Viewpoints, The Oldham Era, P.O. Box 5, La Grange, Ky. 40031-0005, or email to news@oldhamera.com.

Both quit in order to run for the office. You can be sure that there will be no changes in policy from either of them.

I don't see either of them taking on the good old boys that run Oldham County, or bucking the chief justice. Another candidate is currently a magistrate and is the "Good Old Boy Candidate."

Now, when the good old boys support a candidate, you can be sure that the status quo will prevail, and we do not need more of the same. Good Old Boys are unlikely to take on Minton.

On the other hand Rick Rash has been active in Oldham County for years. He touts himself as a problem-solver.

As a well-educated businessman, also with experience as a magistrate, and a fellow who has worked hard to get things done in Oldham County, he has the experience to turn the Circuit Court Clerk's office around.

He has the right blend of county political experience, and a history of standing up to political ninnies.

He has a long record of solving problems.

I believe he will buck the system, and since the good old boys are not supporting him, I'd suggest that the rest of Oldham County ought to.

Support Rick Rash for Oldham County Circuit Court Clerk.

fundamental.

This means appreciating and accepting your partner for the wonderful, unique person they are. And vice-versa, I see so many love relationships in which one partner expects the other to conform in the way he or she deems appropriate.

This is more like slavery than love and not conducive to a mutually satisfying, lasting relationship.

Rather than restricting each other's freedoms, it's far better for partners to encourage each other to build on their own skill sets and confidence.

That gives each of you the opportunity to grow both on your own and through each other. This is the only way true love can flourish.

Keep the spark alive

Keeping the spark alive in your partnership is vital but often overlooked.

Don't let it flicker and die. Keep it alive by making the effort to do new things and enjoy new adventures. Refresh this crucial partnership. Spread love everywhere you go. Let no one ever come to you without leaving better and happier. Love each other as God loves each one of you, with an intense and particular love.

Seeing a heart shape in a card, a shadow, or the clouds is my cue to practice love.

Hearing a love song on the radio I am reminded of the importance of vocalizing about my love. When I am embraced by my lover, I vow to banish fear from my midst.

Blessed is the heart of the universe whose love makes us into lovers.

Feeding our spiritual hunger

Many people say they want to be more spiritual — spirituality is very important to them.

But few people have much of an idea what they are talking about. Spirituality is really rather simple. It is anything we do regularly that helps us grow closer to God.

If we are going to do it regularly, then it will be a discipline.

So to grow spiritually, we must grow in the spiritual disciplines.

Over the next two months I will explore many of the most basic spiritual disciplines.

In Matthew 4:1-11 we have the account of the wilderness temptation.

In the third temptation the devil said to Jesus, "All this I will give you," he said, "if you will bow down and worship me."

Not that it was the devil's world to give, but he would take credit when Jesus' power achieved political dominion.

The temptation to use his divine power to have the kingdoms of the world would tempt Jesus over and over again.

AL EARLEY
From a Religious Point of View

During his ministry, the throngs of people would have done anything he asked, especially the thousands that were fed with a few loaves of bread and a few fish.

What about us? How often are we tempted to use our immense power, for personal gain?

If you are thinking you don't have much power you are wrong.

The power of someone with political or economic clout in the public arena is obvious. And teachers impact their students over and over.

For all of us, of any age, we have power in relationships.

The right word of encouragement can set the life of another on the road to success.

A word of attack can destroy another's confidence, even take away their power.

In the article, "Jesus the Locksmith," John Shea writes, "When the finger jabs the button of the heat-seeking missile, or the fifth grader grabs the kindergarten kid's candy bar, or a lover gives in, it should not be forgotten that power is pleasurable."

"There is no more satisfied sigh than when we have moved the world the way we want it."

"It may be the small world of our family and friends, or the larger world of our work, or the still larger world of economic and political forces."

"But, if when we lean, it moves no matter what 'it' may be, we thrill and puff and strut and know we are alive. Power is not only a fact of life; many think it the most important fact of life."

Like Jesus, the devil is tempting us to use our power, not for the glory of God, but for ourselves.

To this Jesus said, "Worship the Lord your God and serve him only."

Worship God alone, an insight into the spiritually disciplined life Jesus would follow in his entire ministry.

For Jesus, worship was a discipline. The scriptures indicate Jesus worshipped in the synagogue regularly.

Is your worship a regular activity in your life that draws you closer to God?

When you worship God do you center your life on him? Does this guide you to use your power for God's purposes?

Is it possible to worship God regularly without a church community to help guide, correct and strengthen your faith?

Is there any other institution that continuously encourages the life of spiritual maturity daily, so we aren't just Sunday Christians?

How can we make the worship of God a daily experience?

Whenever or wherever we worship, the common hope is that when we experience God, our worship and adoration inspires and strengthens us in using our power to God's glory, not to the service of evil.

Al Earley is pastor of La Grange Presbyterian Church. The views in this column are those of the writer.

Warm weather signals better health, upcoming classes in Oldham

For the past 13 years, two La Grange women have walked the same route. As long as they deem the weather to be favorable, no snow, rain or cold air, Kentrena Story and Vivian Jones-Wright, employees at the Oldham County Sheriff's Office make the same walk twice a day, five days a week from the office to La Grange Elementary School and back. Story and Jones-Wright are part of a growing trend of more health-conscious employees at various Oldham businesses who are walking more as the temperature rises. Local interest in lunch-break walking has also sparked a walking clinic at the Oldham County YMCA. Jones-Wright said she and Story walk to re-energize during the day. "We just do it to be a little healthier," she said. "The last few Employees have also formed walking groups at local businesses like Fastline Publications in Buckner and The Rawlings Group in La Grange. Therese Kellogg, of Smithfield, said she organized a walking group at Fastline a few years ago that now has eight members. Employees walk in the neighboring subdivision, Darby Point, twice a day during work breaks as a way to stay mentally sharp and physically fit. Basketball is more than just a game. For each of the Oldham County High School basketball team's home games the past two seasons, one voice has helped energize those involved in the game and those watching it. OCHS junior Tyler Anderson is the team's public address announcer, creator of highlight tapes and host of the school's student-produced television newscast.

An aspiring broadcaster, Anderson said he volunteered to take the public address duties as a way to stay connected to sports and gain experience in his career pursuit. "It's entertaining parents, players and the school audience," he said. "It just gives me a thrill and it's just an awesome experience." OCHS journalism teacher Bobbi Templet said Anderson has the drive to succeed as a broadcaster. Templet is the advisor for the school's television newscast, OTVX, which features a sports segment

Colonels take baseball momentum

Oldham claims early region lead with win over North

BY JASON STAMM
SPORTS EDITOR, THE OLDHAM ERA

The North Oldham High school baseball team came up with timely hits and good defense last year to win the eighth region was just one out from a big early-season win last week. But Oldham County came up with timely plays this time. OCHS rallied from a 5-0 deficit Friday to defeat visiting NOHS 6-5 in dramatic fashion, also making the Colonels the early favorite in the eighth region. But NOHS and South Oldham are close behind. Trailing 5-0 after four innings OCHS sealed the win Friday in the bottom of the seventh with an RBI walk-off single by senior infielder Robert Caudill. The win gave the Colonels their ninth win in a row and added momentum to their play this season. "After that game, if we're all on the same page and everyone's hitting, I think we can compete with anyone," Colonels' senior pitcher Jack Roller said. "That's all you need to be able to do well in high school baseball." Roller, OCHS' ace, has been the biggest reason the Colonels began the season with a 10-2 record. The right-hander began 4-0 with 43 strikeouts.

Lady Colonels top region after tough start

BY JASON STAMM
SPORTS EDITOR, THE OLDHAM ERA

The start of the the season for the Oldham County High School softball team was daunting. The Lady Colonels began the season with games at Assumption, ranked sixth in the state by the Kentucky Softball Coaches Association, and Ballard, ranked first. Both games resulted in losses for OCHS, but gave the Lady Colonels an idea of how good the elite teams are. They've rebounded from those games and jumped to a region-best 12-5 record, including wins over North Oldham and Walton-Verona, two eighth region title contenders. But South Oldham and North Oldham High Schools are also vying for the region championship. OCHS Coach Steve Leanhart said he's noticed an improvement among the Lady Colonels in hitting and pitching. Q&A: Jackie Joyner-Kersey

The Oldham Era hosted an online chat April 6 with three-time Olympic gold medalist Jackie Joyner-Kersey as a part of Grand Stamm—LIVE!

Joyner-Kersey discussed a number of topics, from the U.S. Olympic track and field team, to North Oldham High School junior track standout Brienne Brown.

The chat is hosted each Friday by sports editor Jason Stamm and is available to join for free at OldhamEra.com/Sports. Each guest has a tie to Oldham County.

hurdler I would like to coach younger athletes, especially to work one-on-one. What's the best approach when making first contact? Joyner-Kersey: I believe you should start with your high school program. Talk with your high school coach, depending the relationship. I have kept in contact with my high school coach all my life. I was taught at a young age to come back and be a mentor before I even became a champion. So it stayed in my blood.

Q: Is there an age that children should really start getting into track? Is there an age too young?

Joyner-Kersey: Running should be fun. Kids (should) love to run then slowly get introduced to track. We start at 6 but we have had parents with younger children out playing in the sandpit and tag running.

Q: Are there any athletes to watch at the Olympic Trials in June?

Joyner-Kersey: Yes, my husband coaches Allyson Felix who is looking to win her first individual gold medal. Dawn Haper, who is the Q: What impresses you most about Brienne?

Joyner-Kersey: I was impressed with her attitude and how hard she is willing to work.

Q: How did you become involved in coaching, especially with younger athletes?

Joyner-Kersey: I have always worked with young people. I also work with my age group coach with our younger athletes. Their ages are 6 and up.

Q: As a recent high school state performer and NCAA defending Olympic champion in the 100-meter hurdles, is from my high school. Sonja Richards, Danielle Carruthers, Brittany Reese. Jay Deloach and long jumper Shaunte Howard are also contenders. The list goes on and on. The U.S. is very deep in talent. It is my wish that all of these athletes make it through our Olympic trials in June.

Q: What about cross-training? I see a lot of younger runners who, especially in middle school, have biomechanical issues that could be addressed with strength training. What are your thoughts on training for runners that's not just running?

Joyner-Kersey: I agree basic running mechanics are often overlooked and I think proper technique in running is essential to becoming a great runner. Basic body weight exercises are needed in middle school. I didn't do cross country but I do know it made a big difference in the athletes who did. I think weight training is very important at the high school level as long as the person knows how to teach the proper way to lift.

Kellogg said. "It's a mental break, but it perks you up and then there's the added benefit of better overall health."

Exercise has been endorsed by Fastline CEO/Founder Bill Howard, who reimburses employees who purchase a membership at the YMCA or similar facility.

Howard said he also reimburses employees who participate in Weight Watchers.

"I've always held to the fact that a company is its people," he said. "If you help the people be healthier, your company will be healthier. I'd rather pay for people to be healthy than sick."

Local popularity in walking has also prompted a clinic at 9 a.m. May 12 at the YMCA that features instruction on technique in fitness, power and race walking. The YMCA is partnering with Swag's Sport Shoes on Westport Road in Louisville to also discuss proper footwear and fit.

"Walking is such a great cardio alternative," said Karen Wyatt, membership and fitness director for the YMCA. "Longer and farther is definitely as good as shorter and harder."

Wyatt said she encourages YMCA members to be active, including walking. She said she's also noticed an increase in the number of walkers in 5K events, such as the Oldham County Grand Slam, which begins with the Crestwood Baptist Church 5K at 8:30 a.m. May 19 at the church.

"Yes, people run, but you see more and more walkers," Wyatt said. "If it takes an hour and a half longer, they can still say, 'Hey, I was in the race.'" Even if walkers don't plan on participating in a race, taking a walking break during work days can serve the same purpose.

Anita Nelson of Crestwood, an employee of The Rawlings Group, said she walks a mile mid-morning and early afternoon each weekday as the weather cooperates.

JASON STAMM/THE OLDHAM ERA

Vivian Wright-Jones, left, and Kentrena Story have walked the same route for 13 years from the Oldham County Sheriff's Office in La Grange.

"I just have better energy," she said. "It exercises your eyes, too. But it does feel good to get out and walk."

OLDHAM BASKETBALL TEAM HONORED BY FISCAL COURT

TRACY HARRIS/THE OLDHAM ERA

The Oldham County High School boys' basketball team was honored April 3 at the Oldham County Fiscal Court meeting. Magistrate Steve Greenwell read a proclamation recognizing the team's efforts this season, which concluded March 17 with a loss to Scott County in the state semi-finals at Rupp Arena in Lexington. The semi-final appearance was the Colonels' first since 1985.

OCHS Coach Scott Gerlach said he's impressed by Roller's supporting cast of pitchers.

The Colonels have eight complete games from their starting pitchers, including a 10-0 win Saturday at Doss.

"Now that they know what to expect, they just seem more comfortable on the mound," Gerlach said. "The results have been more strikes and that's a recipe for pitching success. You throw it in the strike zone and trust your defense."

NOHS' defense has stumbled a few times thus far, including six errors against OCHS.

Mustangs' Coach Erik Phelps said he's been surprised at the fielding woes, but happy NOHS' offense had early success.

After a 1-2 start, the Mustangs averaged 11 runs in their next six games. The only loss in that stretch came to the Colonels.

"We've thrown a lot of strikes and scored a few runs," Phelps said. "We haven't caught the ball nearly as well as I hoped and that's hurt a little bit. I've been surprised at our lack of being able to play catch, which is the majority of what baseball is."

NOHS senior third baseman Vince Lewis said the Mustangs are still confident they can repeat as region champs.

"We can't hold our heads down," he said. "We just need to get better fundamentally with ground balls and hitting and come out strong again. But I still think we're the team to beat."

But with South Oldham struggling early in the season, sputtering to a 5-8 start, OCHS has the early advantage.

Roller said he and his teammates believe they can win every game.

"I'm expecting big things from this team," he said. "We might not be the most talented team, but we work really hard. We always come out fighting."

way the girls have turned around and changed some things to make our team better," he said. "Two or three girls really needed to change to make the team better and they have tremendously."

One of the improved players, sophomore pitcher Jessica Leanhart, has started every game and compiled a 10-4 record.

OCHS senior first baseman Alli Veech said the early season tests helped the Lady Colonels become focused on areas like hitting and pitching.

"We didn't have time to come together as a team and show what we're made of early on," she said. "But we're finally starting to come together and get to the potential we know we have."

SOHS Coach Erik Huber said he sees the potential the Lady Dragons' softball team has as well, though it's been intermittent. Huber cites a young team that includes three players in middle school and two freshman as the main reason why SOHS began the season with a 7-6 record.

"I tease them that the only thing we're consistent with is being inconsistent, but we're getting there," he said. "Right now, we're strong offensively, but we can't get in a rhythm offensively."

NOHS started the season with four straight wins, but then lost five of its next seven games as another young program struggled to find a rhythm.

Lady Mustangs' Coach Mike Jolly said despite inconsistencies, he's impressed with the determination NOHS has shown in each game.

"It's been a learning experience, but they have that refuse to lose mentality," Jolly said. "They just keep trying and keep going and I didn't expect them to have that."

After finishing 15-1 against eighth region teams last season, Leanhart said he expected OCHS to be the top contender for the region championship.

But he said he didn't expect the Lady Colonels to rebound after their brutal early-season schedule.

"Maybe we should've waited a few weeks, but I wanted to get them going," he said. "Now, if we would play those teams, we'd do a lot better."

"In journalism today, these kids have to learn to do everything," Templet said. "You can't just be an anchor. You have to be a producer, an editor, to shoot and write. You have to be able to do everything and do everything well if you want to have a good job. Tyler's willing to try and he learns from his mistakes."

Anderson's drive has caught the attention of WDRB news anchor Gilbert Corsey, who mentors Anderson.

"He's just shown me over and over how hungry he is to work in this business," Corsey said. "That's an unusual characteristic. You don't get that focus, you don't get that drive and determination from a 16- or 17-year old kid."

To help gain more experience, Anderson hopes to shadow sports anchors at Fox affiliate WDRB this summer.

Last summer, Anderson volunteered to write stories and submit video about OCHS sports to MaxPreps.com, a national high school sports website.

Anderson also created highlight tapes using video footage and footage from OCHS boys' basketball Coach Jason Holland for the team's year-end banquet April 1. Anderson compiled the footage into 5-minute highlights for the players to use for college recruitment.

"I'm really grateful for what he's done," Colonels' senior forward Kerry Smith said. "He's such a caring person. If I get a scholarship, I'll definitely be thankful for his work."

Anderson used the footage for highlights for Blue Crew News as well.

During OCHS' post-season tournaments, Holland said he gave Anderson inside access with the team, including staying with the team overnight during the state tournament in Lexington.

"It means a lot because he sacrifices his time and he's done countless work towards it," Holland said. "Our guys really appreciate it and that's just a memory they'll take with them."

Anderson said he hopes to narrow his focus to broadcasting and his goal is to be an anchor on ESPN's Sportscenter.

"I'm a storyteller before I'm a journal-

THE OLDHAM ERA AND THE OLDHAM COUNTY HISTORY CENTER PRESENT APRIL'S LIVING TREASURE

Nancy Oglesby

*Interviewed by Oldham County History Center executive director Nancy Theiss.
Photos by Peter Campbell and Bobbi Nelson and submitted by Oglesby.*

Nancy Oglesby was born in La Grange in D.W. Griffith's house on the corner of Fourth Street and Madison, May 16, 1921. Her parents were Jennie and Woodson Oglesby.

"My father was a real estate agent. They had lived on a farm, I had five brothers and sisters and then they moved into town and got me!"

Oglesby's siblings were Evelyn Abel, Ruth, Joe, Francis and Owen. Her mom was 47 when she was born. Nancy was 12 years younger than her brother Owen.

Her family moved to Russell Court when she was 2, and her older sister had a son nine months younger than Nancy. After school she often went to play with him.

When her sister had a second child, Nancy wasn't sure what to think of the new baby at first.

"We went to my sister's house with mother for a week to take care of the baby and that was the first time I held a baby and have held them ever since!"

"Our neighbors in the courts were the Sibleys, the Pearces and the Dowdens. They were so good to us kids! The Dowdens owned a jewelry store in Louisville and every now and then would bring out a box of rings and let us kids pick out the one we liked.

As a kid, some of her fondest memories came from DeHaven Memorial Baptist Church.

"I was practically born there and went to every mission there was – Sunday School, I even have a diploma from the Cradle Row Department."

On New Year's Eve, she and her friends went to church at about 9 p.m. for games and fellowship.

"At midnight we would go in the sanctuary and hold hands and sing songs! There were also hymn sings and we would go visit different churches."

There were few cars in La Grange, but Dr. Blaydes had a car.

"Mother fell down the steps just two weeks before I was born and he came to see her. He believed he should stay so he stayed at our house and delivered me the next morning."

The doctor lived across from the interurban station and DeHaven Baptist Church.

"It was a big, white two story house and the Brents lived there years later. Dr. Blaydes used his house as a hospital and my mother was operated on there... The hospital was upstairs and his office was downstairs and he and his wife lived in the back of the house. I think it was that way for years!"

Oglesby remembers walking to catch the interurban to Louisville to visit her siblings. Fare was 25 cents.

"The interurban was a street car – there was a track that turned around at First Street, at the station, and then went back to Louisville."

Her family occasionally rode the train to Cincinnati to visit the zoo. She remembers the train turning over in La Grange more than once, and her teacher's brother lost both legs trying to jump on the train to ride through town.

Oglesby remembers many hobos wandering through town looking for work and asking for food. Her mother always fixed the men a sandwich and put it in a sack, but never invited them into the house.

One time a man entered their home during dinner. When they soon realized the man was drunk, Oglesby's father and brother got him outside quickly.

Many of the wandering workers lived in empty train cars near Oglesby's home.

"They would come over and ask mother for needle and thread, too."

For entertainment, Oglesby remembers summertime chautauquas in La Grange. In the 1930s and 40s in Westport, a boat would come up during the summer with entertainers and a stage.

"We also used to roller skate around the courthouse lawn — we would skate and skate. There was a library over the firehouse on First Street and above that was the telephone operator station."

She frequented the library to borrow books. Some of her favorites were Little Women, Little Men, Hans Brink and the Silver Skates.

"I was a teenager before we had a radio but we had a neighbor that would let us kids come in her house and listen to a program called 'Skipecy' from 5 to 5:30 and afterward Randy Atcher came on. We would go in and have to be still to listen to it."

Oglesby attended La Grange School with students from first through 12th grade.

"Mamie Goldsborough was the first grade teacher. She was good but strict. If you misbehaved she would hold your hand and slap it with a ruler!"

Oglesby was good at memorizing and often her teachers asked her to memorize poems for special events and holidays.

Each year the junior and senior class had their own plays.

Students performed a Temperance Day play to discourage kids from drinking.

"Miss Mamie was in charge of that. She was a teetotaler. She had me memorize a poem for Temperance Day when I was in the first grade and she had me repeat it in second and third grades and so on."

Oglesby's father and D. W. Griffith were double cousins.

"When I was in the seventh or eighth grade he came to our house and brought his girlfriend and mother with him."

Oglesby remembers Griffith's girlfriend's appearance.

"I remember the first time I saw her I couldn't take my eyes off her! She had on a blue dress and blue hat and she was blonde."

Nancy Oglesby provided child-care from 1963 to 2007.

"One of the best pieces of advice I have for parents is to love their kids and listen to them. When kids want to talk, I always listened to them. Nowadays parents are busy going here and there, going to work, they got to get the kids ready to get them going, then they pick them up from school, got to get them fed, ready to go to bed – parents don't have time to talk to them and listen to them."

Griffith handed Oglesby $5 and sent her to the grocery for coffee – and told her to keep the change.

"The coffee was 20 cents a pound, so I got quite a bit."

Soon after, Griffith married his girlfriend at the Brown Hotel and moved to the house where Oglesby was born. The couple hosted Thanksgiving dinner and showed silent films.

"D.W. wanted to take my older sister to Hollywood and put her in the movies, but my mother let him know right away that wasn't going to happen."

"D.W. and my dad teased each

HONORING AN ELDER: ABOUT THE LIVING TREASURES PROGRAM

The Living Treasures program is a joint venture between The Oldham Era and the Oldham County History Center. Nancy Oglesby, April's honoree, was chosen by a committee from a pool of nominations accepted year-round. The Living Treasures program publicly recognizes people 60 years and older who have generously served the community with kind hearts and good deeds. Their oral histories and photographs are recorded, archived and made available to the public at the Oldham County History Center as well as on The Oldham Era's website, OldhamEra.com. To qualify for nomination, the nominee must be 60 or older, a resident of Oldham County and demonstrate qualities such as: humor, civility, respect, authenticity, spirit, continuity, integrity, peace, inspiration, community, kindness, simplicity, wisdom, courage, serenity and love. It is not necessary that the nominees are native to Oldham County, only that they currently reside here. The person will be featured on this page in The Oldham Era, and at the end of the year, an exhibit that features the annual Living Treasure recipients.

The Living Treasures program was founded in 1984 by peace activist and minister Mary Lou Cook in Santa Fe, N.M., to express appreciation for the important contributions of elders. To nominate a Living Treasure, submit a letter between 300 to 500 words to describe why the nominee should be honored. Send to Living Treasures, Oldham County History Center, 106 N. Second Ave., La Grange, Ky., 40031.

other all the time. I remember one time my dad told him, 'I never did mind cutting your hair in the summertime because I could rest in the shade of your nose!'

After high school, Oglesby went to work at her sister's restaurant, the Patsy Ruth next to Head's Drugstore.

"You could get a plate lunch with a drink for 75 cents. I served the tables and washed dishes."

She left her job at the restaurant after World War II started and began work at a fencing plant, Reynolds Metals, until the war was over.

"We took the burs off the aluminum that they were going to make planes with."

She applied to work at Kentucky Central, but soon after, George Williamson's mother asked her to stay with Sis Williamson "to help get the baby straightened out."

Later, she was hired by Kentucky Central, where she worked 19 years. She started at $10 per week and took the bus downtown.

In 1963, she started a daycare center in her home that she operated until 2007.

"I kept books of all the children but I haven't gone back to try to count them. I kept babies up to school age. And I kept the older ones, if they had a brother or sister, after school."

She kept 10-12 kids at a time and kept order with simple rules. Children took shoes off at the door and weren't allowed to jump on the couch or enter her bedroom.

"The first thing I would try to do was to get the kids started on something when they got here. ... I got the kids interested in puzzles and they liked to color. I always had them outdoors in good weather - of course, the backyard was fenced in."

"One of the best pieces of advice I have for parents is to love their kids and listen to them. When kids wanted to talk, I always listened to them."

"Nowadays parents are busy going here and there, going to work - they got to get the kids ready to get them going, then they pick them up from school, got to get them fed, ready to go to bed - parents don't have time to talk to them and listen to them."

"I always made time to listen and talk to the kids."

"I never had problems with children eating what I served. ... My mother always said, 'If you're hungry enough you will eat anything.'"

"I never had problems getting kids to do what I asked. A lot of people said it was my tone of voice."

Oglesby had a good friend that could never get her son to take a bath - but she could.

"I would say, 'Come on Richard, let's take your bath' and he would come on and take the bath. And my friend said that she would have to argue with him."

But Oglesby told - rather than asked - the boy it was bath time.

"We have a hard time making choices, much less a little kid!"

She misses the children.

"I know that is one reason it helped me stay young. I do a lot of reading and I play Sudoku. I always did all kinds of handiwork. I still do all my own shopping. I don't stay in shape like I used to. I have wonderful friends that take me everywhere."

"I think that keeping kids is the best thing that I have done. I always loved babies. I have been a happy person and don't like old, sad grumpy people and don't want to be one!"

B8 / CLASSIFIED

ADAM H. EDELEN
AUDITOR OF PUBLIC ACCOUNTS

To the People of Kentucky
Honorable Steven L. Beshear, Governor
Lori H. Flanery, Secretary
Finance and Administrative Cabinet
Honorable David Voegelé, Oldham County Judge/Executive
Members of the Oldham County Fiscal Court

Independent Auditor's Report

We have audited the accompanying financial statements of the governmental activities, the business-type activities, the discretely presented component units, each major fund, and the aggregate remaining fund information of Oldham County, Kentucky, as of and for the year ended June 30, 2011, which collectively comprise the County's basic financial statements, as listed in the table of contents. These financial statements are the responsibility of the Oldham County Fiscal Court. Our responsibility is to express opinions on these financial statements based on our audit.

We conducted our audit in accordance with auditing standards generally accepted in the United States of America, the standards applicable to financial audits contained in Government Auditing Standards issued by the Comptroller General of the United States, and the Audit Guide for Fiscal Court Audits issued by the Auditor of Public Accounts, Commonwealth of Kentucky. Those standards require that we plan and perform the audit to obtain reasonable assurance about whether the financial statements are free of material misstatement. An audit includes examining, on a test basis, evidence supporting the amounts and disclosures in the financial statements. An audit also includes assessing the accounting principles used and significant estimates made by management, as well as evaluating the overall financial statement presentation. We believe that our audit provides a reasonable basis for our opinions.

As described in Note 1, Oldham County, Kentucky, prepares its financial statements in accordance with the modified cash basis, which is a comprehensive basis of accounting other than accounting principles generally accepted in the United States of America.

In our opinion, the financial statements referred to above presents fairly, in all material respects, the respective financial position of the governmental activities, the business-type activities, the discretely presented component units, each major fund, and the aggregate remaining fund information of Oldham County, Kentucky, as of June 30, 2011, and the respective charges in financial position and cash flows, where applicable, thereof for the year then ended in conformity with the basis of accounting described in Note 1.

The county has implemented Governmental Accounting Standards Board Statement 54 as it related to the modified cash basis of accounting as described in Note 1, which has altered the format and content of the basic financial statements.

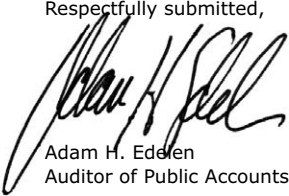

The county has not presented the management's discussion and the analysis that the Governmental Accounting Standards Boards (GASB) has determined is necessary to supplement, although not required to be part of, the basic financial statements. The budgetary comparison information is not a required part of the basic financial statements but is supplementary information required by GASB. We have applied certain limited procedures, which consisted principally of inquiries of management regarding the methods of measurement and presentation of the budgetary comparison information. However, we did not audit it and express no opinion on it.

Our audit was conducted for the purpose of forming opinions on the financial statements that collectively comprise Oldham County, Kentucky's basic financial statements. The accompanying supplementary information, combining fund financial statements, is presented for the purposes of additional analysis and is not a required part of the basic financial statements. The accompanying schedule of expenditures of federal awards is presented for purposes of additional analysis as required by U.S. Office of Management and Budget Circular A-133, Audits of States, Local Governments and Non-Profit Organizations, and is not a required part of the basic financial statements. The combining fund financial statements and the schedule of expenditures of federal awards have been subjected to the auditing procedures applied in the audit of the basic financial statements and, in our opinion, are fairly stated in all material respects in relation to the basic financial statements taken as a whole.

In accordance with Government Auditing Standards, we have also issued our report dated December 5, 2011, on our consideration of Oldham County, Kentucky's internal control over financial reporting and on our tests of its compliance with certain provisions of laws, regulations, contracts and grant agreements, and other matters. The purpose of that report is to describe the scope of our testing of internal control over financial reporting and compliance and the results of that testing, and not to provide an opinion on the internal control over financial reporting or on compliance. That report is an integral part of an audit performed in accordance with Government Auditing Standards and should be considered in assessing the results of our audit.

Based on the results of our audit, we present the accompanying schedule of findings and questioned costs included herein, which discusses the following report comments:
2011-01 The Fiscal Court Should Require The Depository Institution To Pledge Or Provide Sufficient Collateral And Enter Into A Written Agreement To Protect Deposits
2011-02 General Fund Expenditures Should Not Exceed Budgeted Appropriations

Respectfully submitted,

Adam H. Edelen
